

License/terms of use:

We are a small company and want to be fair about the use of these materials. They are designed to have a wide range of uses and to be easily copied, so a trainer can load them into a variety of presentations. This also makes it easy to give copies to friends and colleagues, which would be an unauthorized use (aka “stealing”).

These materials are copyrighted and by purchasing them, you gain the right to use them, but do not gain the right to give them to others or to edit or change the video tapes. You can make copies for your own use (see below). We understand that there may be a number of trainers or other staff in an organization that would want to use these materials from time to time. We are more than happy to provide additional licenses (both single and unlimited use) at low cost for this purpose.

This book and the video clips are licensed to be used by one individual person in a classroom or lecture setting (live/in-person presentation), even if they have been purchased by an organization. The individual person who holds this license may copy or adapt materials from this book to use in training programs or other presentations the license holder delivers. These materials may not be used by any other person or organization, without the purchase of an additional license, or the express written permission of Krieger Solutions, LLC. The video clips may not be used in an on-line or e-learning setting without the purchase of a special license. They may not be filmed or video taped without purchase of a special license.

The individual person who holds this license may use the video clips in any live presentations she or he gives for any number of programs and may load them on any computer she or he is using in a presentation. Following the presentation, these clips must be deleted from any shared computers. Copies of these clips may not be given to any other individual without the purchase of an additional license.

If the individual who is granted the license leaves the organization or moves to a position in which he or she will no longer use these written materials or video clips, the license may be transferred to another individual in the organization, at which time the original license holder may no longer use any of the materials or video clips for any purpose.

Additional licenses for additional staff in the same organization are available at a greatly reduced price, so we hope you will honor this copyright. We want to be fair and friendly, but we have to make a living also!
